What is Cervella™?

Cervella™ is an FDA-cleared medical device for non-drug treatment of anxiety, depression, and insomnia. Cervella™ works by delivering micro pulses of electric current through the patient's brain via conductive electrodes that are integrated into the ear cushions of an audio headset. Cervella™ can be used during rest, work, study, or play.

How does Cervella™ work?

Cervella™ is a type of Cranial Electrotherapy Stimulator (CES) medical device. Cervella™ transmits small pulses of electric current across the patient's brain via a pair of conductive electrodes placed on patient's head. CES devices are approved by the FDA for treatment of insomnia, depression, and anxiety. They exhibit very good efficacy, do not present significant side effects, and they are not habit-forming. According to research, the micro-current that is delivered by Cervella™ has several effects on the brain: it affects the Default Mode Network (DMN), alters the endogenous brain oscillations, and causes change in neurotransmitter levels such as serotonin and endorphin.

Cervella™ is a great alternative to drug therapies, especially for patients that respond poorly to anti-depressant drugs or experience significant side-effects with drug-based therapies. Cervella™ can also be used in conjunction with drug or cognitive therapies.

Please Contact us by Phone or E-mail to find out how to place a consult through your VA hospital Prosthetic's Department to order the Cervella™ for your patients.
